Summary: Short stories about the Avengers at Hogwarts. Tony is in this but there's the four character limit. Please read and (maybe) review? I own nothing you recognise. Characters from other fandoms may appear so I don't own them (they wont be major, and I may delve more into their time at Hogwarts in another story)

1. Clint meets Natasha

Hey! So this is a collection of drabbles about the Avengers at Hogwarts! For the purpose of this (these?) story(s) they are ALL eleven and begin the same year as Harry but it doesn't revolve around the plot of the "Harry Potter" books! Updates do NOT have a schedule and are random. Most will be in order but it may jump occasionally.

Disclaimer: I will *_never_ own Harry Potter or The Avengers. Harry Potter belongs to JK Rowling and The Avengers belong to Marvel (Some people from other fandoms may appear but not really, the character wont be in the story as a main/minor character but they'll have the same name/looks if that makes sense, BUT I still do not own anything)

Background info: Obviously Natasha is *_NOT_ a assassin and she wasn't part of the Black Widow Project, but her parents are Death Eaters. Barney Barton is _NOT_ in this story although he is mentioned.. briefly. Clints parents have died and he was adopted by Phil Coulson (Who is an Auror) and yes he still uses a bow and arrow. Bruce obviously isn't The Hulk and Thor is completely human. Tony being eleven doesn't have the Arc. **

Now the story!

Clint Barton rushed to Platform 9 3/4 - worried that he would be late - as his guardian Phillip (Phil) Coulson walked calmly behind him. Phil never showed much emotion around anyone and Clint wondered about how he managed to keep such a straight face. Hiding emotions was something Clint understood - especially after his older brother Barneys death - but the older man never broke down. Ever. Clint just put it down to Phil working under Fury for so long and forgot about it. Snapping back into reality Clint noticed that his brain had been on auto pilot as he was already on the other side of the brick wall. Catching a glimps of the red and black train Clint said goodbye to his guardian and ran to get a cart - having almost no trouble with his trunk. He found a mosly empty cart and settled down in the baggage area (he saw better from far away) and looked out into the cart below.

Clint pushed himself against the wall when a small red-headed girl came into the department, thinking it must of been empty. She sat down and suddenly called out "I know someone's in here! Come out."

Clint (being slightly scared of the mysterious red-head) dropped out of the baggage area and clutched his small back-pack - that held his Bow and Arrows.

"Hi! I'm Clint Coulson! Well I'm technically Clint Barton but my parents died and I didn't really like them so I took the last name of my dad who adopted me." Clint rambled, hoping that the red-headed girl would like him. She seemed cool.

"Natasha Romanoff"

"What house do you think you're gonna be in? I wanna be in Slytherin! Phil, oh he's my new dad!, was a Hufflepuff and my mom was a Ravenclaw!"

"I'm going to be in Slytherin as all my family where in Slytherin."

Wow. Natasha was almost as good at hiding her emotions as Phil! Clint thought.

2. Bruce, Tony and Steve

Tony sat in his compartment, still in a state of auto pilot after being told - three weeks ago - that magic was real. And even better that he was a Wizard!

He was so lost in his thoughts and disbelief that he didn't even notice the door opening and two eleven year old boys walk in.

"Can we sit in here, please?" the blonde boy asked.

"Huh? Oh yeah sure!"

"My names is Steve, this is Bruce." The boy - Steve - said, gesturing to the small, brown haired boy.

"Hi, I'm Tony Stark!"

"Nice to meet you Tony." Bruce said in a quite voice.

"You too! What house do you think you're going to be in? I want to be in Ravenclaw!"

"Gryffindor"

"I don't really mind as long as it's not Slytherin. I've heard that they hate Muggle-born wizards and witches."

"Oh. Are you Muggle-born?" Tony asked - for a genius he sure could be stupid.

"Yes" Bruce replied after a moment of hesitation "Do you have a problem with that?"

"No!... I mean I'm also Muggle-born. What about you Steve?"

"Half-Blood. My mother is a witch and my dad is a Muggle, but I was raised around magic only because my father left when I was three."

Ahh that explains why he didn't know who I was Tony thought.

Soon enough the three eleven year old boys where chatting happily and playing exploding snap - Bruce won. Every single time and Tony swears that he was cheating. It wasn't long until the three boys had to get off the train and into the boats. Heading towards Hogwarts.

Dumbledore looked at the approaching first years, singling the boy-who-lived out. The saviour was here.

What Dumbledore didn't see was the five children - a Russian and four American-Brits - who would make his job a lot harder.

Okay so about the American-Brit part, this is my reasoning.

America *_has_ to have it's own school for Wizards and Witches. I mean it come on! Its so unrealistic when people try to pass Hogwarts of as the only magic school (I mean what about Pigfarts? ... granted that IS on Mars) so Bruce was adopted by a Welsh family after his mother was murdered and his father arrested (when he was four). Steve moved to Northern Ireland because his mother had a sister up there who offered to give them a home - his mother couldn't take the memorise she had of America (this was when he was three) . Tony, well I've made it so that Tony has always lived in Scotland because his mother is Scottish and Howard just wants to be able to work without a child run around, so after his mother gave birth to him they moved to the small village that his mother grew up in (he is still famous because of everything he has done its just that he done all that in Scotland). I did this because I believe that Hogwarts is the only magic school in Briton and I needed them all to live quite far away from each other (Okay I wanted the too but still!) and I wanted them to have different accents (because why not?).

Natasha is Russian but she has lived in England for a year now (she has a Russian accent).

Clint is American but he doesn't have an accent because he travelled a lot as a child and his parents didn't have accents.

End file.
